TED DIBASE

"Everyone has a price," says Ted DiBiase, the Million Dollar Man. He loves to bribe people into doing all sorts of bizarre things. He's even tried to buy the WWE Championship. But! Though he tries to buy the easy way out at times, no one can dispute that the Million Dollar Man is a brilliant technician in the ring.

Jump

At 6' 3" and 260 lbs., you can bet your bottom dollar that DiBiase will "cash in" on his ability to "deposit" an opponent hard onto the mat.

Spin Kick!!

Bam Bam always delights the crowd with his lethal cartwheels, dropkicks, and rope shenanigans. Unique and controversial, and always a crowd pleaser, it's easy to see how the "Beast from the East" got his nickname.

What can you say? He has tattoos on his head and flames on his colorful outfits. He's Bam Bam Bigelow, the "Beast from the East," and he's definitely wild. He'll shout, he'll rant, he'll rave, but, considering his enormous size, you have to admire his incredible agility.

Flames

Grab the flames power mark as it passes, and Bam Bam will really get fired up.

HONKY TONK MAN

The Honky Tonk Man's a "Total Entertainment Package," claiming that he can wrestle, sing, dance, and play the guitar. And he says that he can do all these things better than anyone else in the world.

Guitar

Getting the guitar will strike a nice chord for Honky Tonk Man. Take "note" of the amount of energy he receives as he becomes "sharp" enough to knock his opponent "flat."

He's 6'4" and 243 lbs. of pure power who likes to shake, rattle, and roll his opponents. Honky Tonk Man, like all the wrestlers, has his own special theme music.

Shades

As his trademark sunglasses drift along the back of the ring, pick them up and you will increase his energy by several "shades."

A formidable combination of strength, speed, stamina, and wrestling execution make "Macho Man" one of the greatest competitors in all of professional wrestling. His elbow smash is particularly fierce.

MANDY SAVAGE

As one of the most popular WWF Superstars, Randy "Macho Man" Savage now reigns as one of professional wrestling's best, capably managed by the Lovely Elizabeth, the WWF's only female manager. Savage is known to virtually explode with raw power and fury.

Captain Nintendo

What Happened in Part I: Brett Randalls, a member of Nintendo's R&D team was accidentally endowed with special powers. The accident also brought to life the Mother Brain from "Metroid." Brett and Tara have just discovered their friend, Max, and a terrified life-size Princess Zelda at the mercy of a larger-than-He Ganon, who in turn is being enlisted by the Mother Brain in her attempt to...to...oh, you'll find out. Pass the popcorn.

"Aw, man," exclaimed Brett, "not Ganon! Not Ganon!" Turning to Tara, he confided, "Tara, I don't know what to do. These are the baddest villains yet and I'm just one guy."

"Brett," replied Tara calmly taking his hand. "I don't know too much about these new powers of yours or even what's really going on here, but I do know this: You are the captain of your fate. You have great powers that are totally unique. Look at yourself in the mirror. You are already more than 'just one guy.' You are Captain Nintendo."

Brett Randalls turned to see his reflection in the tinted picture window of the reception area. He gazed at the inspiring figure in the glass, adorned with the costume he, himself, had designed. In that fleeting moment, he realized his awesome destiny. Tara was right. Brett Randalls was now Captain Nintendo. And now, Captain Nintendo was needed. Turning from the glass, he stared bravely at the terrifying spectacle before him. As he took a step toward the perilously powerful monstrosities ahead and without turning his gaze from them, Captain Nintendo remarked, "You know, this is turning into a really long day..."

Concentrating, Captain Nintendo raised his arm shoulder-high and pointed his fingers at the terrifying beast in front of him. But, before Brett could fire any kind of blast, Ganon disappeared.

"What?!" thought Captain. "Where'd he...Ooo!!!" Something unseen had knocked Captain Nintendo several feet across the floor and onto his costumed keester. He was so shocked, he didn't even hear Tara (who by this time was trying to administer First Aid to his unconscious best pal, Max) scream his name. Though considerably dazed, he could sense that Ganon was coming toward him. Instinctively, Captain Nintendo bathed the area in different hues hoping to change the light pattern around Ganon and make him visible. Going through the spectrum had little effect until Captain hit upon ultraviolet rays. He could just make out a huge form plodding toward him. He then increased the intensity of the rays, casting a dim silverish wash over the entire reception area.

"Amaarrgggh!!!" Ganon roared in pain and promptly became visible, waving his spellike arms and glaring with crazed fury.

Cap wasted no time. Though weakened by the blow from Ganon, Cap focused a concentrated beam of solid silver laser light and hit the towering beast full force right between the eyes.

"Amaarrgggh!!!" Rmaarrgggh!!!" Ganon was definitely ticked off. He put his paws to his smoldering eyes, stumbled back, and plopped to his own keester with a considerable thud. He continued to snarl and complain unintelligibly. Captain Nintendo noticed that the Mother Brain was quivering somewhat. He realized that the Mother Brain was directly controlling Ganon.

"All right, you two! That will be quite enough!"

Captain Nintendo looked up to see Morgana O'Faye, Nintendo's top receptionist, descending the stairway which led into the reception area.

"I'm the one responsible for this area and I won't stand for any roughhousing in here," scolded Morgana. "Take it outside where it belongs!"

"Where it belongs! That's it!" said Captain Nintendo to himself. "Sorry, Morgana," he said, redirecting his attention. "This...they...it..." "Oh, Brett! It's you!" shouted Morgana getting a closer look. She had maintained a world class crush on Brett for some time now, though she never let him suspect it. "I didn't recognize...Says, nice threads! I really like the boots, but I'd put, like, a big S on the chest; or a bat. And over here I'd try one of those."

"Morgana, I'd like to stay and chat, but I'm sort of in the middle of something and you've just given me an idea."

"Me? But I..."

"Brett, did you injure that thing permanently?" asked Tara, still attending to Max who was starting to come around.

"I think he's only blinded temporarily," Cap answered, "which means we've got to work fast. You and Morgana stay here and help Max and Zelda. I'll be back very soon." As he turned to go he could see that Zelda, frozen with fear, looked like a mannequin, oblivious to everything. "Hang in there, Princess," he thought, "I'm going to get you the best kind of help...from 'where it belongs.'"

Brett raced back to the R&D department. "EMERALD!" he shouted.

"I saw. I saw," said EMERALD. "I intercepted magnetic field relays and watched the whole thing through the security cameras."

"Oooh, that's very good!"

"Thanks."

"Careful! It's sharp," cautioned Morgana.

Cap grabbed the letter opener and charged toward the door. As he passed by the stationary Mother Brain, a drifting bubble seemed to deliberately swoop down against his shoulder injecting a seering pain. Reflexively, Captain Nintendo turned and fired an electrical blast at the Mother Brain, but hit her pedestal instead, with no result. Jumping as high as he could, Brett fired another blast, this time directly into the Mother Brain. Though she seemed to absorb the blast, Cap could tell she had been affected.

"Smoke that, witch!" He knew he'd made some progress, but there was a more pressing problem in the parking lot. Cap shot out the door, dreading the destruction he feared had already taken place. He was relieved to find that Link had thus far managed to dodge the fireballs in the unimpeded freedom of the parking lot and as yet no real damage had occurred.

FLOOM!! Link, out of breath, succumbed to two more fireballs, which brought him to his knees. Captain Nintendo, too, had to steady himself as he fell to one knee from the loss of energy. They would not survive another such attack; and they both knew it.

"Hit the next fireballs with your sword, Link!" shouted Cap.

Link said not a word, but nodded his comprehension. A split second later, another pair of fireballs were streaming toward him. With perfect timing, Link raised his sword, divided the flaming globes, and for a third time, the savage Ganon became momentarily visible. But this time Captain Nintendo was ready. Just as Ganon began to come into view, Cap lunged toward him with the letter opener, unerringly connecting with his target.

Ganon roared in incredible pain and began to flash in and out of visibility. Cap could hear shrieks coming from inside the building. The Mother Brain was feeling the pain as well since she was directly supplying Ganon's life support. Suddenly, Ganon froze motionless and then evaporated as though he were being beamed away. The letter opener hung in mid-air for a second and then dropped to the ground. Captain Nintendo looked through the tinted glass and saw the diabolic Mother Brain shimmer and slowly fade from sight, leaving only a quickly dissipating black smoke behind.

"Well," said Cap turning toward Link who by now had risen to his feet. "What is there to say but Thank you, my friend." He stretched out his hand to the fabled adventurer. As the heroic duo stood shaking hands, Link smiled and spoke the only words Captain Nintendo had heard him declare:

"I like the boots, but on the chest I'd put..." and then Link faded back to continue his adventure in Hyrule on the Game Counselor's monitor.

Inside, an anxious trio greeted Brett as he reentered the building. Cap waved them off, however, and approached the PC. "EMERALD, is the Mother Brain gone?" he asked. "WELL, YES AND NO..." started EMERALD.

"EMERALD," said a very tired Brett, "one day, I'm going to fry your ROM."

"O.K., I'm hip. The Mother Brain is in a dormant suspension phase—what we would call 'hibernating' until she can store up enough mental energy to resume her plan. There's no way to determine how long she'll be gone. Might be centuries; might be just a few seconds."

"What exactly is her plan?" asked Cap.

"Recall her programming, Brett. The Mother Brain is programmed to attempt world domination!"

"I hadda ask," groaned Captain Nintendo.

"Well, with that happy thought, I must be getting back to my desk. I'm way past my break time," said Max and promptly departed.

"What a day," sighed Captain Nintendo as he returned the letter opener to Morgana.

"Brett, what was it you were going to ask me just before all this began?" asked Tara.

"Huh? Oh, Well, I just wondered if you'd like to go out with me? There, I said it," said Brett like a heavy burden had just been lifted.

"Well, that's sweet, Brett," said Tara with a strange glint in her eye, "but I really try not to date the people I work with, you know? Thanks anyway."

Tara proceeded down the hall as Brett watched after her, scratching his head. Turning, he smiled at Morgana and then lumbered outside where he searched the air with his eyes. He reflected on how his life and purpose had changed so drastically in such a short time. And then he spoke:

"If you can hear me, Mother Brain, listen well: You will not succeed. For wherever there is an injustice to be rectified, a person in need of rescue, or a quest to be taken up, there also will you find the power of Nintendo...and it will always triumph. I promise."

The Adventure of LINK™

ZELDA II

The hero of Hyrule begins his new adventure...

But the trail will be long and perilous.

After the fall of Ganon...

ZELDA II

The Adventure of
LINK

Princess Zelda knew the secret of the Triforce, but refused to tell it to a great sorcerer. He then cast a sleeping spell on her.

Years have passed since Ganon's defeat, and Link has grown since that epic struggle. But much evil remains still in Hyrule.

As foretold in legends, a man of royal bearing would come to save Zelda and Hyrule, and his hand would show a mark.

To overcome the evil forces, Link must find the third piece of the Triforce. Wisdom and Power he has already. Now he must find Courage.

And thus Link's great task begins.

Hyrule has greatly changed.

Unlike "The Legend of Zelda" the game consists of two viewpoints. In the Overhead view, Link can hike along the roads or venture into the wilderness. If he meets an enemy off the road, suddenly he is thrown into the Side view action screen where he must do battle. The view is also from the side inside the many palaces and towns that lie along his way. Other changes include the many people who talk to Link and help him with clues. He also has the ability to use magic.

Link sets out on roads unknown.

Link visits towns.

Villagers give him clues.

ITEMS

As Link searches out clues and battles the minions of Ganon, he must uncover powerful items in secret places.

Magic Jar

The potion within restores Link's magic. Know that the red jar will fill up his magic meter.

Heart Container

Adds one measure to the staunchness of Link's heart and restores life to its fullest.

Candle

A flame to brighten the dark caves through which Link must pass. Once lit, it cannot be extinguished.

Handy Glove

Where the way is blocked by a fall of stones, the glove will prove to be Link's salvation.

Boots

The way ahead lies sometimes across the seas in places where no man may venture save he who has the boots.

Treasure Bag

A treasure of points (50, 100, or 200 pts.) awaits Link if he is quick and brave and lucky.

Magic Container

An increase in one measure of magic will Link gain from this vessel, and his magic meter will fill up!

Hammer

Many roads in the Overview Screen are blocked by boulders. Only the hammer can shatter them.

Raft

Divided by a great sea, the vastness of Hyrule can be explored fully only if Link wins the raft.

Flute

Long it has been told that the music of this ancient flute has powers both mysterious and strong.

MAGIC

Eight spells of Hyrulean Magic must be learned by Link, and some will use up more of Link's magic than others.

Shield

Strengthens Link's defenses. Within one screen, an enemy's blow will fall with only half the force.

Jump

Once earned, the magic of the high jump allows Link passage over walls and other barriers along his way.

Fire

In many battles, the magic fire which Link shoots from the tip of his sword will give him the edge.

Spell

Casting this spell on particular enemies will prove the difference between victory and defeat.

Life

Dark moments will come when Link is nearly spent. Using Life, he will regain three measures of vitality.

Fairy

In narrow places, impassable even to Link, he may choose the magical transformation into a flying pixie.

Reflect

With this powerful magic weapon, reflect back the evil spells that sorcerers hurl at Link.

Thunder

When all seems lost the magic of thunder brings hope, for its power affects all enemies present.

Study well the battle map of Hyrule!

Do not be deceived! The distances of Hyrule are greater than they at first appear. Long is the road Link will travel, and fraught with many dangers. Yet also he will find help in unexpected places.

Setting out from North Castle where lies the sleeping princess, Link explores the roads open to him, putting them to memory and learning secret ways through hill and desert and treacherous swamplands.

Action Scene

Off the beaten path, Link encounters enemy creatures and servants of Ganon. The scene becomes a side view, and will scroll either left or right as Link fights toward freedom from the center as seen below. Each action scene consists of three screens where Link must prove himself to be the Champion of Hyrule.

The servants of Ganon have invaded!

Bot

Deeler

Megmat

Tough skinned, the Megmat is a dangerous pest.

The King's Test: Passing the Palace Guardians

Ironknuckle

In the depths of each of the six palaces of Hyrule, a mighty guardian challenges Link. Long ago, the King who broke the Triforce and hid the fragment of Courage, set these guardians the task of protecting six mystical statues that are the key to regaining peace in the land.

Horsehead

Barba

Helmethead

Carock

Link sets off to meet his destiny.

Not all paths are open to the hero when first he ventures forth from North Castle. In the map below are shown the limits of his wandering, from Ruto in the mountains of the northwest to Rauru in the south. Parapa Palace is within reach if he travels to the northeast. And yet in this region of Hyrule, buried in the hills and deserts, hidden away in forests and caves, can be found items essential to Link's quest. It is but for him to find them.

From North Castle...

Always will Link's journey begin here where Zelda sleeps. Should he fail during an attempt, he must start out again from North Castle. Only while Link retains a life will he continue at the place where he fell.

The Desert Cave

Far across the burning sands of the Tantara Desert lies a deep cave in which it is rumored there rests the statue of a Goddess and a great prize to he who wins it. But the prize must also be won, for the quest is never easy.

Parapa Palace

To the north and east, beyond mountains and deserts, is set Parapa Palace. Only columns of marble rise above the lonely sands. But below, in the great halls and passages, it is said that a candle awaits.

Ruto

Nestled between northern peaks, the village offers rest and aid to Link.

From Ruto came the statue of the Goddess. Return it for a rich reward.

Rauru

Near the forest east of North Castle, Rauru offers lessons in magic!

Here dwell folk with powers to restore spent life and magic.

Parapa Cave

This dark passage leads to the desert. But beware, a lone Lowder lurks within.

The Secret Wood

Under the eaves of this isolated forest, look for a bag worth 50 pts.

Link first visits Rauru.

In the town, Link approaches and speaks with many people (get close and press B). Some know nothing, but others help with guidance and words of wisdom. Here, too, Link may restore both his life and magic.

From a wise man in the town, he may learn a secret of magic power. Here, in Rauru, Link need only discover the whereabouts of this sage old man. But in all other towns secret lessons are offered only to those who have earned them. By finding treasured objects lost, and by doing valiant deeds, Link gains the trust of the town folk who will then reveal the home of their local magician. Much evil has come to pass due to Ganon's henchmen, and many wrongs must be righted in Hyrule. So this, too, is Link's fateful task.

Cautiously Link takes the dark path to the Parapa Desert.

Carved from the roots of the mountains, the tunnel to the desert remains the only way open to Link. There darkness hangs like a cloak, and there lurks a Lowder which Link must pass. Although in blackness, he can just see the motion of the creature's feet.

The Desert Palace lies deep in the desert.

Whispers in Ruto may tell much.

Link listens well to all those he meets in this village. Some speak of a mysterious, stolen statue which can be traded for magic.

South of North Castle is the cave to which Link must now go. Though he has no candle to light his way, treasure beckons. Each step threatens to be his last!

The Desert Cave of Tantara

In a cave in the Tantara Desert, a statue of a Goddess awaits the hero. It is more perilous than the southern cave, for invisible holes pit its floor and the dreadful creatures rush and swoop at Link. With the candle from Parapa Palace, the way is easier.

Parapa Palace Awaits!

The screen has switched to the side view as Link reaches the palace in the desert. Cautiously he passes a silent guardian of stone and moves swiftly to the lift which will take him below. There in the ancient hallways the servants of Ganon roam. Long has it been since adventurers dared to enter this shadowy realm, and of Link at first they have no fear. Branching tunnels and stairways and deep shafts all are there to be explored. Treasure, too, lies buried in the vaults. But with each step Link takes new terrors may awaken seeking his end.

He must seek hidden keys to enter locked chambers.

An elevator gives Link access to the many Palace levels.

Not all is evil here, for a life-giving fairy awaits him.

Bridge stones crumble with each step as Link runs across.

Entrance

This precious gift of light is worth more than gold or jewels to Link.

Horsehead: The Guardian

In a time long forgotten in Hyrule, Horsehead was given the task of guarding the statue in the back of Parapa Palace. Suddenly coming face to face with the monster, Link stops short. He cannot proceed until he defeats Horsehead, and only an attack to the creature's huge head can succeed. After a moment, he knows he must use a jump attack.

The guardian has the head of a horse and attacks whirling a giant club.

Horsehead wears no helmet. Link need only leap high and strike hard!

To the statue Link returns the crystal!

Each Palace holds a statue that resembles a face of mystic origins. Together they create a binding force that locks the Grand Palace. The crystals destroy the statues, Palaces, and the force.

Only after Horsehead is defeated can Link place a crystal in the statue.

Set the crystal and the palace will crumble.

Fairy

Midoro: The Swamp Palace

With the candle and a greater confidence, Link now seeks the second Palace. Through a cave he must pass and there defeat a fierce boomerang wielding Goriya. He must also have earned the magic of the high jump to escape. Once outside, he finds himself on the south side of the mountains in a new land. Here the Midoro Marsh stretches wide before him. First south, then east and north, finally turning back to the west he must travel. Through a narrow gap in the mountains he struggles on through the swamp until there ahead he sees the Palace. When he has increased all of his levels at least to three, Link enters this new maze. He has heard that a handy glove is somewhere hidden in the second underground level to the far left and that one cannot proceed far without it.

Helmethead: The Guardian

Link comes upon him in the most remote corner of the Palace. A knight armored in blue steel bars his way. With his shield Link foils the attack, but his sword blows merely ring off the guardian's hard head. Here, to succeed, he must learn the art of the Downward thrust.

Aiming high, Link jumps and attacks.

Link continues with his head attack.

Palace Secrets...

On the steps, stone statues guard the palaces. If Link strikes one with his sword he may receive something valuable.

This prize is a jar of magic poison.

Island Palace

Off the shore of Hyrule, protected by mist and sea, a rocky island is home to the third Palace. Neither boat nor bridge will avail Link as he attempts to cross the channel. Instead, he must take another, darker peth. One day, he wanders directly south from the King's Tomb and suddenly he is falling through the earth! He has stumbled upon an ancient tunnel linking the mainland to the Palace. Picking himself up, he makes toward the right end the Island Palace.

Link sets to memory the path he must take from the King's Tomb. "Eight steps in a line straight to the south." Later, he would draw a map of all his travels, for he knew the importance of this.

The Island Palace was built with fewer twists and turns, but a powerful enemy waits within. Link shrewdly uses Jump and Shield magic to work his way through.

Entrance

Ironknuckle: The Guardian

Astride an unearthly horse, Ironknuckle charges in the final chamber of the Palace. Link jumps at his foe, swings his sword, and discovers that this technique may be the key. Many times the knight thunders toward him, but eventually he dismounts and fights hand to hand.

Link's jumps and down-thrusts of his sword begin to toll on the still mounted knight.

When the knight dismounts, Link leaps in close to the attack, sensing victory.

100 points and a key are buried.

Using the down-thrust technique, Link carves his way down to the treasure buried in the blocks.

Before he seeks treasure, Link polishes off a Doomknocker and Myu.

Discovering the raft will open new horizons to Link, if he ever gets out.

Palace of Maze Island

Sailing east across the sea, Link comes to the second continent of Hyrule. Here he encounters more of Ganon's servants, new villages and puzzles to solve. One of the most intriguing is the puzzle of Maze Island. Connected by a bridge to the mainland, the island is the home of the fourth Palace wherein live a host of Wizards and other beings. For a time Link wanders through the maze. In a few places he uncovers secrets, and with luck and patience he eventually arrives at the entrance to the Palace. But that is only the beginning. The maze outside is nothing compared to that which awaits Link within the Palace walls. It is his greatest challenge yet. Hidden pits drop into fiery pools and no path, it seems, is free of the Wizards.

Somewhere in the island maze is the palace.

With the magic of Reflect Link's shield now repels the spells cast by Wizards and shoots them back.

Link can close now and finish his task.

Carock: The Guardian

Quickly Link learns that the power of the wizards is not only in their spells, but also in their quickness, and the fact that they vanish without warning. Only with Reflect can he fight them. He waits, crouching at the left of the screen.

He activates Reflect, and crouches on the left.

He must be patient for this method to work.

ZELDA II

The Adventure of

LINK

To defeat Doomknocker...

Link must face many who have the strength and cunning of Ganon. Doomknocker is one such as these. With clubs he attacks. Alone the shield is not enough.

Link must use the Reflect magic.

An attack from above will frustrate the giant.

With the winged boots Link might now walk above the waves.

The Adventure Goes On...

Link has come far through countless dangers, but though weary and bruised he knows that he cannot rest. Two more palaces must he conquer and in their most secret chambers set the crystals. Still to be found is the mighty power of Thunder. People, both evil and good, will cross his path. And somewhere ahead, waiting like a nightmare, is the Great Palace. Zelda's life and all of Hyrule are at stake.

Your wait will not be long before further secrets are revealed. In March, we will aid you in conquering the guards of the fifth and sixth Palaces, as well as offering many other insights.

To the fifth Palace...

Magos and other creatures protect this complex palace.

With the winged boots you can float over the waves to the Palace on the Sea. Link learns to pass through walls here.

And the sixth Palace...

Inside, Link must draw a detailed map to help guide him.

Hidden in space and time, the sixth Palace is revealed by special clues. The Magic Key is essential, too.

What lies ahead in the depths of the Great Palace?

The road there is perilous, for you must pass through an enemy ambush.

The enemies, even inside the caves, give Link no quarter.

And there at last is the end of the road—the Great Palace—where waits the final test.

POWER

Grab your board and hit the concrete.

You can't become a skating animal overnight. It's going to take mondo practice and some nasty scrapes and bruises before you'll be ready for the fierce competition of the ramp or a deadly duel in the pool with Lester.

The Skate Shop manager is an old pro who can teach you plenty about skating.

If you move the cursor to the right place, you can get him to tell you everything he knows.

SKATE OR DIE!

Move the cursor around by using the Control Pad.

Move the cursor to the Sign-In board and push the A Button to sign up for the competition.

Register your name.

Move the cursor to "Go Compete" and press the A Button.

IN THE RAMP

If you go to the Ramp Area, you can compete in two kinds of competition. In the Free Style Competition, you have ten passes to show off your killer moves and excellent technique to a wild crowd and a panel of judges. Next, catch some air in the High Jump Competition. You can try for a record on your first jump, or use all five passes to achieve some serious hanging time.

Your scores are determined by the difficulty of the moves you attempt.

Hang it out or Hang it up!

The Control Pad and the A Button are used to change direction and perform tricks while in the air.

Start at the Skate Shop.

You can head for the Pool for a quick jousting match, try a jam session or a race at the Downhill Area, or compete in both freestyle and high jump competitions at the Ramp.

Try all of the events in the "Compete All" Area.

This is the ultimate in skating madness—A five event, wild and woolly competition for pros only.

Ride the wooden wave in the Free Style Competition.

This righteous ramp event is a real crowd pleaser.

RAMP

Build up some speed and soar to new heights.

Use the controller while in the air to gain height on your final jump.

POOL

Jousting in the Pool is way cool.

In this game you try to knock your opponent off his board using a "bopper" stick while skating in an abandoned swimming pool.

Speed asphalt in the downhill race!

A long course through a local park.

The wild Jam Course.

Watch out for Lester's dirty tricks.

DOWN HILL

Take any course you want.

HIGH JUMP

The High Jump is one of the most dangerous events in skating. If you use all five of your passes to build up speed, you can almost go into orbit on your final jump! Be careful on the landing though—A fall from that high will send you crashing through the ramp!

If you crash and burn on the landing, your score won't count.

Press the B Button continuously to build up speed on the ramp. If you have the NES Advantage or the NES Max, you can use your turbo button and really fly.

Do you think you can match this awesome jump? Grab a board, sign in at the Skate Shop, and give it a try.

The record breaking jumps will be almost impossible without using your turbo button.

One mistake and it's Crash City, dude.

FREE STYLE

If you misjudge your landing, you'll slide down the ramp on your knees.

It's a good thing this is a video game. A fall like that can be gnarly.

HIGH JUMP

Eat Ramp, skatehead.

Pointers from the Pros

Check out these mondo moves and then try them yourself. If you can master these, you'll be the undisputed King of the Concrete.

IN THE DOWN HILL

The Downhill Jam is an awesome race through a trash-littered alley. There are no rules, so do whatever it takes to win—including knocking your opponent off his board.

Keep on your feet and score big!

Get an extra 500 points for crossing the finish line first.

Break a bottle for 100 points.

Crush a can for 100 points.

Your score in the Downhill Race is determined by how quickly you finish. Use the A and B Buttons to cut sharply and jump obstacles.

Refer to Checkpoints A-K on this map to the right for more tips.

JAM RACE

Checkpoints

- 1 Try going through here.
- 2 Jump to the left for a safe landing.
- A You earn 200 points for trying the ramp.
- B Get 100 points for nailing your landing.
- C Jump this barrier and pick up 400 points.
- D A second jump will get you past this barrier.
- E Only the best can make it through this pipe.
- F You'll need great timing to make this jump.
- G Jump again and you can get past this.
- H Hit this ramp for 200 points.
- I You'll need to catch a lot of air here.
- J Jump this grate and get 100 points.
- K Jump here for an easy 100 points.

These are some of the places you can score. You'll have to find the rest.

IN THE POOL

Watch closely to see who has the "bopper." If you attack your opponent without it, you will quickly become just another statistic.

In the Pool Joust only one player has the "bopper" stick at a time. Attack quickly when you have the stick, and plan your route carefully if you don't. Getting knocked off your board at high speeds in an empty swimming pool just can't feel all that good, so be careful. You win the joust if you knock your opponent off his board three times out of five, and you must win by a margin of two knockdowns.

There are three opponents in the Pool Joust.

The stages in Super Mario Bros. 2 get more and more challenging as you advance. For this reason it's best to be an expert of the first areas before you tackle the elevated challenges of stages to come. So, the Warp Zones, which allow you to skip some stages, should not be used by first-time players. You don't want to get into too much too soon. Expert players, however, can find the Warp Zones useful to advance past levels that they have already mastered. So, for you Super Mario Bros. 2 aces, instead of telling you exactly where the Warp Zones are, we'll show you what they look like. If you recognize these pictures, then you're ready to warp! How do I go through the bases? How do I advance past Greece?

The maps in the instruction booklet are very useful in helping you get through the bases. When going through these mazes, use a pencil to point to the wall on the map that you are facing and move the pencil when you change your position. This will take a little time, but it will also help you keep your bearings. There are some walls in the mazes that you can destroy with grenades. To replenish your grenade supply, defeat the enemies that have machine guns. Also, make sure you know which base you're in. The fake base under Berlin is the one with grey walls and the real base has blue walls and is hidden much deeper in the water. When you come up the ladder you will be outside this base. Look for a blue door to enter.

Make use of the maps and keep track where you are heading. You can use a pencil to point at the wall on the map that you're facing.

● Mission One Magic

Here are some tricky moves that may not help you advance in the game, but they are fun to watch. When you meet the Lopers, knock one of them down just in front of the ladder on the left part of the screen. Then walk around to the right and hide around the corner. When Loper stands up he'll be lifted by a mysterious force to the ledge at the top of the ladder! In that same area grab a barrel and walk close to the corner until you see that your character's feet are slightly above the ground. Then throw the barrel. Instead of just going the usual short distance, the barrel will spiral up and out of the screen, never to be seen again. Near the end of the mission where the Linde characters are, walk far to the right so that you are against the wall and next to the pipe. Press Up on the Control Pad and you will rise up and out of the screen. Be aware that this will probably result in your being stuck. You'll then have to reset the game and start from the beginning.

The Amazing Spiraling Barrel! Look! No Strings!

● Our Wait Chintai.

Pass Chintai in Mission Two without even confronting him! Just climb up to the top of the building, watch Chintai appear, and then climb down. In just a few seconds you'll be in Mission Three without fighting this last enemy.

● Invisible Williams

Here's a great way to build up as many hearts as you need in Mission Two. After you climb the wire fence and get the bat from Williams, climb down and walk slowly to the right. When the Williams with the dynamite appears, move up as far as you can—against the pile of girders—and Williams will follow. Then climb up the fence before Williams can walk past the end of the girders. When you start climbing, Williams will freeze. Climb up and go to the left—onto the other side of the gap. Then climb down and walk as far to the left as you can. When you turn around and go back to where you met the Williams character, he'll be gone. If you swing your bat or kick where Williams was, however, you'll earn the points that you would earn if he were actually there. Continue to kick and swing your bat for as long as time will allow. You could build up to seven hearts right here!

Go back as far to the left as you can.

Move up and Williams will follow.

When you return, swing your bat where Williams used to be for big points

● Avoid Conflict

Some areas in Mission Four are easier to pass than they seem. When Abobo breaks from the wall, you don't actually have to fight him. Instead, just climb the wall and get away. Also, if you don't defeat Williams in the section with the ladders, no other Williams characters will appear. This will help you save your energy until the very end.

No need to bother with this guy.

Avoid Williams and no others will show up.

● Special Strategy

Monsteropolis will never be the same once you master a secret fighting technique that will multiply the power of your weapons and make Dr. Wily's evil humenoid robots shake in their collective boots! With a single powerful shot from one of your beams (the Elecman Beam works best) or the Cutman Blade, you'll be able to register several deadly hits to even the toughest enemy. Fire the weapon, and as soon as it reaches your opponent, rapidly press the Select button to pause and resume the game over and over again. This will slow the action, and as your shot makes its way through the enemy, it will register a shot with every slight movement. This technique is especially useful against the one-eyed rock monster in the Dr. Wily stage. You'll be on your way to battle with Dr. Wily in no time!

Beat the Rock Monster in a few shots.

● One At A Time

One of Mega Man's most powerful advantages is that he can take on the abilities of his foes once they've been defeated. Some of these special abilities can be very useful against the enemies that wait ahead. Our agents in Monsteropolis have devised a plan of attack for these enemies. They contend that it is best to defeat Cutman first and use the Cutman Blade to do away with Elecman. You can then use the powerful Elecman Beam to defeat Iceman and blast Fireman with the Iceman Beam. Beware! Ice is very vulnerable to the Fireman Beam and you'll find that Bombs will work nicely to quiet Gutsman. Good luck!

■ Agent #214

● Build A Fleet

Our hard working code crackers have discovered a button pushing sequence that will increase your chances of survival ten-fold! Save the Milky Way and destroy Zelos with the power of 30 ships and four chances to continue. During the title screen, just press the following direction arrows and buttons on your Control Pad: Up, Up, Down, Down, Left, Right, Left, Right, B, A. Then press Start and you'll have 30 battle-ready vipers to take you through the alien-infested galaxy. This code can be used in some other Konami games as well, so give it a shot.

■ Agent #014

● Double Agent!

Come out fighting with an arsenal containing twice the special items and abilities that you had before. Our agents have developed a strategy that will double your power for a one-player game. Just start a two-player game and use the same password for both characters. This will give you two identical fighters with the same number of bombs, keys and extra abilities. Let the second character be defeated and collect all of the loot that they leave behind. You'll have twice the goods to take on the enemies ahead!

Punch in the same password for two different players and then eliminate the second one.

■ Agent #615

● Key Play

On your mission to destroy the evil Plutonium Boss and his band of radioactive mutants, keys can be very hard to come by. At the beginning of Stage Five there are two barriers that require keys. We have, however, found a way to get by the barriers if you have only one key. First destroy the enemy at the end of Stage Four, grab the key and move on to the first barrier. Use the key to open the lock, and move your vehicle to the area between the barriers. Then leave the vehicle and climb the ladder to the top. If you fall off to the right correctly—hugging the wall as you go down—you'll land on the other lock and it will open. You will lose one character this way, but it is a good way to advance if you don't have the proper equipment.

Use your key to open the lock and move between the barriers.

Get out and climb up the ladder to the top.

Leap off the edge and hug the wall as you fall.

You'll lose one player, but landing on the lock will open the second barrier.

■ Agent #331

● Alternate Weaponry

Usually you defeat enemies in this game by blasting them. Your weapon does have limitations, however, as it will only shoot horizontally. This would sometimes leave you in a jam if it were your only hope. Luckily, you can also use your Bionic Arm as a weapon. This comes in especially handy in Area Three when you come across the giant fly directly overhead. If you get the timing right, you'll be able to shoot the Bionic Arm up and score a direct hit.

In most cases your weapon will destroy enemies.

Sometimes you'll need to use other means of elimination.

● Indestructible!

You may have tried every weapon you have to do away with the commander of the enemy troop in the last overhead combat scene. But, you still haven't even scratched him. That's because he's invincible and cannot be defeated. You'll just have to find another way to get around him.

Stay clear of this enemy.

■ Agent #316

● Hammer Throw

Our agents have informed us of a trick that could result in your becoming the champ of the Hammer Throw. Press the direction arrows on the Control Pad in a counter-clockwise pattern to start spinning and make sure that the Power Meter is very low — either even with the "0" in "POWER" or lower. Press and hold the A Button when the character flashes and let go when the angle is 90 degrees. The hammer will only go a short distance, but your effort will be recorded at 92.04 meters. It'll be a new World Record!

Make sure your power is low.

Toss the hammer at 90 degrees.

A New World Record!

● Fast Flying Fingers

Fir up your fingers and take to the Control Pad! In this game, quick button pushing and manual dexterity really come into play. There are some ways that you might improve your time by mastering different button pushing techniques. We've discovered that one way to optimize your speed is by putting your thumb and forefinger together as though you were pinching something very small, and by rubbing the point of your finger and thumb nails back and forth very quickly between the A and B Buttons. Another useful technique is to concentrate and push the button quickly and softly without letting there be too much space between your finger and the button. There are also those that prefer the "Hold your breath, close your eyes, and let 'er rip" method. You will, however, meet with mixed results using this technique.

● Swimmer Selection

As you know, in the Freestyle Swimming event you can choose either the Crawl or the Butterfly. We've found that you can also choose the stroke for the computer operated swimmer when you are playing a one-player game. The computer usually swims Freestyle, but if you press Down on Control Pad II before you are off the blocks, the other swimmer will swim the Butterfly stroke!

MARBLE MADNESS™

HOW TO PLAY

Enter your name at the beginning so you can keep track of high scores.

Stage 1 and 2 are a piece of cake. Relax!

The basic movement of the marble is managed by use of the Control Pad and the A Button. The Control Pad steers the marble, and the A Button, when held down, will give it extra speed.

It's a wild race against the clock for one or two players! You're in control of a mad marble as it winds its way through tough terrain and past a variety of obstacles and enemies to the final goal!

Stage One will help you get used to the movement of the marble when you play the game for the first time. You should master this stage quickly. As a more advanced player, you'll be able to earn bonus points by maneuvering the marble over the numbered blocks. Stage Two is where the real race begins. Avoid mistakes and save time for the races to follow.

MEET YOUR ENEMIES!

BLACK BALL

Dodge quickly to avoid this character. If you meet the Black Ball head on, it will result in lost time. Get out of the way with a quick dodge, and before it has a chance to react, get moving!

MARBLE EATER

A collision with this creature will stun you, and if you stay in one place too long, the Marble Eater could swallow you whole! Stay as far away as you can. If it leaps, dodge quickly.

SLIMES

Don't let your marble even touch one of these powerful puddles. The slightest contact with the acidic slime will dissolve your marble into nothing!

BIRDS

These creatures appear in Stage Five. They travel in flocks, so be careful. If you see one, you know that more will follow. Watch their timing, and get out of the way.

STAGE 3

This is where the game starts to get challenging. Use the A Button to increase your speed when you can. Some tricky passages, though, will be easier to get through at normal speed.

The Marble Eaters frequent this area. Go along the right edge and make a quick escape. Any contact with the Marble Eaters will be a stunning experience.

Watch the timing of the moving carpet and make your move in between the waves. You can avoid the carpet by going around, but that could waste precious time.

INTERMEDIATE RACE

The passage is very narrow here. Bouncing off the walls will only result in lost time. Precise steering is the key. The less contact your marble has with the walls, the easier it will be to get out. Move slow and steady.

After a narrow passage, you'll meet up with several Slimes. You can avoid them by getting onto higher ground. The two raised parts of the floor are good rest stops. Watch the movement of the Slimes, and make a run for it when you see an opening. Try not to waste time. Every second you save will help on the next race.

On to the fourth race!

STAGE

AERIAL RACE

★ POINT

Being a little dizzy after this drop is unavoidable. You'll want to regain control as soon as you can. Otherwise, you might end up going over the edge. Stay alert and keep away from the drop off!

★ POINT

The catapult will sling your marble over the wide gap here. You'll have a decision to make. One path covers more area, but is safer, while the other path requires very precise timing.

This race is full of obstacles. Controlling the speed of your marble from this point on is crucial. Increase your speed when you can, but remember, each mistake is costly.

★ POINT

These Vacuums are tricky. Their powerful suction could take your marble clean off the track. Don't stop! You've got a nice straight path here. Work up some speed and get moving. You're running out of time!

★ POINT

Watch out for the Hammers. They're the strongest enemies in this race. When they appear, they'll try to knock you off the track. Stand your ground and forge ahead. With a little force, you should be able to get by.

On to the fifth race!

STAGE 5

Everything you know is wrong! This stage is completely upside-down. Upward slopes will be very quick and downward slopes will be hard work. It'll take a little getting used to.

The Birds are very destructive, and quick too. Timing is extremely important here.

It looks wrong, but it works. This race can be tough from the start because your balance is all off.

You'll be able to move upward effortlessly here. Don't go too fast!

SILLY RACE

You'll meet with the most success on this race if you've saved at least forty seconds from the last race. The faster you are on the early races, the more time you'll have on the more advanced ones.

Here's where you get your revenge! There are enemies here, but since this is the Silly Race, now you can squash them. You'll earn three seconds for each one you flatten.

On to the final race!

The last race is the most challenging of them all. Make good use of the skills you've learned from the previous races and don't give up. If you have at least fifty seconds saved up, you may have a good chance of clearing this stage. It's up to you from here. Good luck, and start racing!

Presidential Order—Rescue the Prisoners!

Overnight an anti-American faction seized the nation of Cherigo, placing its pro-American supporters and the U.S. Embassy in jeopardy. Fearing for the lives of Americans and the American supporters in Cherigo, the President ordered an immediate clandestine military operation to remove the now political prisoners from that country. Military brass, concerned that any recognition of U.S. forces infiltrating would prompt a violent overreaction by the anti-American troops, decided that the rescue team could bear no resemblance to U.S. Forces. The mission code name—Operation Wolf—involves the air dropping of an individual commando at various key locations across the country. Once on the ground, each man will attempt to infiltrate the enemy prison camps, free the prisoners held there and evacuate them by any means available. Posing as rebels, there can be no American aid, and the men are on their own. The men who are capable to go are many, but few will have the necessary courage and dedication to join the Wolfpack on this hair raising mission of rescue, will you?

A quick check of weapons and gear and you move to the door of the plane. Seconds later a lone Wolf glides silently to the ground below. America's counting on you!

Armed with Courage and Determination!

Once on the ground you quickly hide your parachute and begin looking over your equipment. The load feels much lighter than normal due to the small amount of ammunition and grenades that you're carrying. It would have been nice to have been able to carry more equipment, but speed will override the need for fire power. Besides, nine millimeter ammunition isn't that difficult to find. After checking your compass, you remove your helmet and wipe the sweat from your brow. "Another hot one," you think as you don your soft cover. "Better get a move on, daylight's burning." Drawing your weapon you head out. You make good time nearing your first objective—the Communications Center. Suddenly a branch breaks somewhere in the foliage. Turning quickly, you find that you are no longer alone!

Holds 20 rounds. Every magazine you shoot on the screen increases your count by one.

Shoot this and a timer will appear. For the next ten seconds you have an unlimited ammunition.

Items

When you shoot this, any damage done is decreased by the number that's indicated.

When this is shot, it explodes just like a Rifle Grenade right where it is Each enables you to launch one grenade. You can carry up to nine at one time.

Hints

Most of the items are set on the map. Watch for birds and pigs that appear on the screen. They're the secret to finding additional items.

Six Stages To

COMMUNICATION-CENTER

Mission: Cut off enemy communications before they warn other troops!

When you reach the Communications Center you will want to knock it out before the enemy can call for reinforcements or warn others. Be careful not to injure friendly Red Cross personnel who will be in the area. Accidentally hitting them will increase your total damage as you will no longer be able to get medical help. Remember to watch for the birds or pigs to appear!

Keep a sharp eye on the screen! In the heat of the battle it's easy to mix targets up, be careful!

It takes several hits to knock out the car and copters. A grenade will get them in one!

JUNGLE

Mission: Try to obtain information from captured enemy soldiers!

Care must be taken again in the jungle as a few local youths have escaped from the prison camps and are making their way through the jungle right across your path. Patrol boats and armored cars alerted by the sounds of the explosions at the Communications Center are looking for you! Things are really starting to heat up now!

The number of cars and boats keeps increasing! Watch your grenade count, you'll need them now!

No situation could be worse than this! You'll have to wait for a clear second and take careful aim!

VILLAGE

Mission: Capture any enemies possible and interrogate them!

You've made your way through the jungle into an occupied village. Drive the enemy out and free the village. Clear this stage and you'll get a chance to rest up.

Concentrate on getting clear shots off. Aim very carefully!

Freeing the village will give you a place to rest and regain your strength. You're almost there!

Mission Success!

AMMUNITION DUMP

Mission:

Replenish yourself with enemy supplies.

You will need to load up on some extra ammunition before the final assault on the prisoners' camp. You've caused enough havoc by now that the enemy isn't really sure where you are. Press onward before the enemy regroups and sends additional units out to hunt you down. You must hurry!

Incoming fire! Staunch defenders guard the Ammo Dump and will not give up no matter how bad it gets!

At the end of the stage you will get an opportunity to reload and prepare for the next objective.

POLITICAL PRISONER CAMP

Mission: Locate the five Embassy captives.

This is the most critical part of the mission! Enemy soldiers have heard your approach and are going to eliminate the prisoners! You'll need an eagle's eye to pick out the captives and save them from their precarious situation. The prisoners will try to help you by running off the screen, cover for them!

A prisoner's in trouble! The only way you'll be able to save him is with a perfectly aimed shot!

Downing a helicopter too near the fleeing prisoners may harm them from the blast. Use good judgement!

AIRPORT

Mission: Take the rescued Americans and escape by plane!

Hopefully you've got enough ammo to get through this stage. With the plane in sight you are almost home now! Watch out for attacks from motorcycle soldiers! They come from the sides of the screen and can move very quickly. Try to use your peripheral vision to watch the whole screen at once. Only a sharpshooter with lightning fast reflexes can escape this intense, action-packed combat zone!

Using your weaponry carefully and conservatively is the secret to defeating enemies like this!

Your reward depends on the number of prisoners saved. Here's what happens if you save them all!

NES FOOTBALL GAMES

NINTENDO

POWER BOWL

Nintendo Power proudly presents three hot new football games for the NES. Tecmo Bowl, John Elway's Quarterback, and N.F.L. Football duel it out in a classic battle on the gridiron, as they compete for top honors in the Nintendo Power Bowl.

TECMO BOWL

Editors Note: SNK has indefinitely delayed the release of Touchdown Fever which was previously announced.

GAME RATINGS FROM A PRO

To get an insider's viewpoint on these three new grid games, we went to NFL veteran Doug Reed. Currently with the Los Angeles Rams as a starting defensive end, Doug took time out to give Nintendo Power readers his assessment of Tecmo Bowl, John Elway's Quarterback and NFL Football. Here's his report:

1992 NFL/PA
MSA

The Rams' #93, Doug Reed, is constantly improving his game skills—both on the field and at home with his NES. Now, that's true game dedication!

TECMO BOWL

"This is my favorite of the three games. I like that I can choose my favorite NFL team, program sweeps and pass plays, and intercept passes on defense. This game is very true-to-life and precise. I like the fact that the player's names are displayed and they give each other a "High Five" after a touchdown. This game was fairly easy to figure out, and any Nintendo fan should be able to pick it up easily."

John Elway's Quarterback.

"This game has great graphics—you can see everybody on the field. I really enjoyed the fact that there was a time limit on how long you could take to call your play. I also like the way you use the arrow to decide on a receiver after the play starts."

N.F.L. FOOTBALL

"This is a good game, but my least favorite of the three. The beginning graphics are excellent, but the play graphics are slower than the other two games. This game is much more complicated, and hard to understand right away."

(Editor's Note: Doug's right. But for those looking for super football strategy, check this one out.)

SUMMARY

"All three of these games are excellent football games. I liked Tecmo Bowl the best because of its fast action and great graphics, but I would recommend all three to every football fan with an NES."

TECMO BOWL

You will need a well-balanced offense and a great defense to win it all. You can play one of the NFL's most powerful teams, or try your hand with an underdog and pull off an upset.

N.F.L. FOOTBALL

This is the only game that lets you pick from all 28 NFL teams.

You can play against a conference rival in either the NFC or the AFC, or see how you do against the "other" conference in an interconference game. You can even play in the Super Bowl, choosing any two teams you want.

Use the controller and then the A Button to select your favorite team.

Let's get started.

Choose the type of game you want with the Select and A Buttons.

There are even six different sets of players for each team.

TECNO BOWL

Be sure to check out the Player's Chart at the beginning of the game before deciding on a team. These players will perform just like they do in real football, so choose wisely.

J.E.'S QUARTERBACK

In John Elway's Quarterback, the players are not named, but there are 14 teams to choose from, and all the cities match with their real NFL team.

The title screen is even autographed by superstar Quarterback John Elway!

The locker room screen makes you feel like you're one of the players.

formations for you. Most are pass as important as your talent.

Use the Shotgun formation and give

● DEFENSIVE PLAYS

Choose between six different defensive formations depending upon what offensive play you think the other team will call.

Use the zone defense for short yardage situations.

Choosing your plays wisely is a big part of the game.

The decisions you make as the coach will decide your team's future. Whether you wind up in the cellar of your division, or challenge for a shot at the Super Bowl, it's all up to you.

TECMO BOWL

Each team has four basic plays. Try them all for greater success.

Each team will depend on the same kind of strategy as it does in real football. Miami and Denver can be counted on to put the ball in the air. Teams like Seattle and Indianapolis will count on a strong running attack while San Francisco's use of both the pass and the run will prove to be almost unstoppable.

• OFFENSIVE PLAYS

RUN

Put your shoulder down and bowl them over.

Once in the open field, turn on the speed.

PASS

Look for an open receiver down field.

Go for the long bomb.

They will appear automatically on 4th down.

DEFENSE

You control player Number "1" when on defense as well.

Each team has its own style and playbook. It will take some time to learn each team's strengths and weaknesses.

Here's just one of 20 offensive plays to choose from.

• DEFENSIVE PLAYS

In the 2-player game, you can choose your defensive formation.

N.F.L. FOOTBALL

With 36 total formations to choose from, you will need to use the rule books to call plays.

HOW TO CALL PLAYS

Okay sports fans...Here are some of the highlights from each of the three new football games. All three are action-packed, exciting, and realistic. Whether it's a high-powered passing attack, a muddy battle in the trenches, or a tight defensive struggle, you'll get hours of football fun from any of these three games.

TECMO BOWL

This game has the smoothest character movement of the three games. Although there are only four plays per team, the quick action will more than make up for it.

The scoreboard contains some colorful advertising for other great Tecmo games.

• OFFENSIVE PLAYS

Here's the kickoff, and we're underway.

The diving tackles are fantastic.

Throw deep down field.

The kicking meter measures the power of your kick.

• DEFENSIVE PLAYS

Your player is numbered 1.

Switch between layers with the A Button.

Fill the holes in your line and make the tackle.

Cover the receiver and go for the interception.

John Elway's QUARTER BACK

They didn't name it after John Elway for nothing. This is an excellent conversion of the pass-oriented arcade game.

You can't break tackles. If the defense gets as much as a hand on you, you'll go down.

Make a quick tackle, or your opponent may break away for a long gain.

The vertical scrolling action makes this game different than the other two.

Watch the demonstration screen play by itself to pick up some valuable playing tips.

The scoreboard is continually shown at the top of the screen.

NOW PLAYING!

N.F.L. FOOTBALL

You're the coach in N.F.L. Football, and you have over 30 plays to choose from. Strategy and play-calling are this game's strengths. If you enjoyed LJN's Major League Baseball game, then this is the football game for you.

Use the Control Pad and the A and B buttons to call your plays.

There is even a coin toss before the game to decide who will kick off.

The noise of the crowd and the referee's whistle make you feel like you're really at the stadium.

Drop back into the pocket and look for an open receiver.

The close-up screen lets you control the receiver when he is about to make a catch.

The action is slower than the other two games, but the game is more complex.

Now, let's compare some of the special features of each game.

METAL GEAR™

Mission Objective: Destroy "Metal Gear"

The last message received from Agent Grey Fox mysteriously said "Metal Gear" and nothing more. After 24 hours without further contact it could only be assumed that the "Outer Heaven" Group had captured him. No one really knows what "Metal Gear" is, but it's for certain that if Colonel Vernon CoTaffy, the insane but brilliant strategist of "Outer Heaven" has conceived it, this project has to be stopped. Fox Hound needs another top notch commando to infiltrate "Outer Heaven," locate and rescue Agent Grey Fox and destroy project "Metal Gear." Only one man fits that bill and that man is Agent Solid Snake. Join the Fox Hound Group's newest operative in his impossible mission—the destruction of an unknown weapon in a base created by a madman!

PREPARE FOR A REALISTIC ACTION ADVENTURE!

"Metal Gear" offers amazing action oriented detail in adventure gaming. Soldiers actually "patrol" rooms and have the ability to "see" in the direction they face. Use this to your advantage, and "sneak" up behind the guards.

"OUTER HEAVEN" - TOP SECRET MAPS!

Use the trucks to infiltrate the base!

Using the trucks can get you past many difficult obstacles. The chart below shows the route taken by each truck. Find the truck that will help you the most.

Use your Weapons and Items effectively!

Pressing the Select Button will bring you to the sub-screen where you will be able to choose which of the eight different weapons and 25 items or a transceiver you wish to use. Only one of the weapons and items can be used at a time so you'll have to pick carefully. To familiarize yourself with the particular strengths of each, you should try using each at various points of the game to see exactly what they can do. Some of the items appear to have no use at all (like the cigarettes) but turn out to be very valuable at the end or at later points in the game. The OPTION on the weapons screen (silencer) is used automatically on any firearm that you select so remember that it will not help with anything that explodes when fired. You will find that the transceiver will help you in situations where things do not seem clear. You must push Up or Down on the Control Pad to transmit your message at times to receive any response. Try it constantly!

You have 25 utility items to use. Some you may not need but all have a purpose. Smart use of all will pull your bacon out of the fire!

Between eight different weapons and a silencer, Solid Snake is extremely well armed. Learn to use each at an expert level.

Code name:
Shot Gunner

The first person that you see as you break out of solitary is the Bldg-1 guard, Shot Gunner. You could take him on with your fists, but it's better to grab your equipment out of the door on the right side of the lower wall. Don't worry, you won't need a card to get in. Once re-armed, you'll be ready to deal with this tough guy. Try using your remote control missiles or this trick...

Run in between his shots to close the gap...

With good timing you will be able to reach the wall.

Move up and down avoiding attacks, keep closing in!

Lower the boom with the grenade launcher!

BLDG-2

Second Floor

Code name:
Machine Gun Kid

The Machine Gun Kid will attempt to "mirror" your moves following you back and forth across the screen. You can use this to your advantage by getting him to follow you to a spot where he can't hit you and you might be able to hit him. Like Shot Gunner, many of your weapons will work on him so be sure you try them all. Here is just one of the many ways that you can go about achieving victory!

Choose a point of attack and lure him there.

Launch grenades at him from a safe distance!

A few mines in his path will slow him up!

A combination of mines and grenades does the job!

BLDG-3

First Floor

Code name:
Bull Tank

The Bull Tank can prove to be one of the toughest characters you face. The Tank moves with surprising speed and you don't have a lot of space to maneuver in. You'll need five quick hits with your grenade launcher to knock it out before it pushes you out of the room or you'll be "pushing up the daisies!" Only the grenade launcher will work, so follow these steps for success!

Select the grenade launcher before entering the room.

Once inside, start firing as fast as you can...

Instead of running away, go to the sub-screen...

When you return to the main screen...

EAT EACH FOE!

Code name:
Fire Trooper

The Fire Trooper swings a stream of flames from side to side keeping all his enemies at bay. All of the weapons you fire at him that pass through his flames will be destroyed before they can even reach him.

For this character you'll need a weapon that works at angles rather than straight on. The missiles are a little too slow, but the submachine gun is perfect. Give this a try!

Get close to him along the top wall...

Inch your way to the corner right next to him...

Select your submachine gun, lock and load!

Open fire, the diagonal bullets will score a hit!

Destroy the Super Computer!

According to Dr. Petrovitch the "Metal Gear" will be controlled by this Super Computer. Without it the weapon is a useless pile of junk. Use the doctor's info to destroy this super menace!

Watch out! The room is heavily guarded in many ways!

Set as many plastic Explosives as you can.

As soon as one explodes plant another!

"Outer Heaven's" leader is waiting but who is he?

Dr. Petrovitch will tell you to use 16 plastic Explosives to destroy the giant Super Computer. But look out, destroying the computer sets off a timed chain reaction that will destroy the entire base. You'll have to escape but someone is guarding the exit! Who can this villain be?

VIDEO SHORTS

Ahem. Looks like Mario is having a wee bit of trouble with the projector, so while he's rethreading the film, let us take this opportunity to say that we think "Video Shorts" is going to take your breath away. The variety of sources of inspiration for these video games is truly amazing. The sources range from the latest feature films to board games centuries old; from goodwill games to classic literature. There are also some fresh new ones generated from some great imaginations. O.K., Mario. Hit it!

So you finally got the job you waited all school year for. You're a counselor at Crystal Lake Camp. Of course, every job has a few little irritations that make life unpleasant. You know: mosquitos, poison ivy, whiny kids, Jason. Yes, Jason, star of slash and screen, is back at Crystal Lake Camp and he's sharpened his ax. It's up to you and your fellow counselors to defend the little campers left in your charge from everyone's favorite maniac. It will take teamwork as each of the camp's six counselors has his or her own special talents. As you walk the campground, defeating Jason's minions, you will find items that will be helpful in conquering Jason. If you should become tired or need the special skill of one of the other counselors, go to their cabin and use the special feature to switch places with them. Pass along weapons that you've found or cure them if they've been injured by Jason or his zombie crew. But keep a close eye on the cabins as Jason is always on the prowl and if he slashes up another counselor or the campers, it's going to be tough to explain on Parent's Day.

COUNSELOR POW-WOW

If you are tired, find a cabin with a healthy counselor and switch places.

GRAVE CAVE

The cave holds secrets, but beware the Blue Cave Wolf and his vice-like jaws.

WORLD GAMES

Registered Trademark of Epyx Inc.

from MILTON BRADLEY

Here's a game that travels to the four corners of the Earth to bring you international excitement and the thrill of foreign competitions. Your first stop is the Soviet Union where you can test your great strength in the "snatch" or the "clean and jerk." Next, it's on to Germany for some barrel jumping on the ice and then scenic Mexico for a little tense cliff diving. In France, you will negotiate the slalom course and, aye, a quick stop in Scotland for a bit o' caber tossin'. While in the Far East, bow to your 400 pound honored Japanese opponent and then try to throw him to the ground. Travel to the Great White North in Canada for a g'day of log rolling, eh? Finally, back in the U.S. of A., summon your courage, and ride the terrifying Brahms bull, if you dare.

Get to know each bull's individual characteristics and anticipate his moves.

Hold down the A Button to grab your opponent's belt and throw him off balance.

STAR SOLDIER

© 1988 Hudson Soft MFD under license by Taxan USA Corp.

from TAXAN

Out in the dark, dim, empty void of space, Starbrain has inhabited an Empire space station. Starbrain is a giant runaway computer that destroys everything in its path and threatens the existence of the Galactic Empire (Don't you just hate it when that happens). As a renowned Star Soldier, you are the pilot of Caesar, the fastest fighter ship in the fleet and your mission is to defeat this mechanized monstrosity. On every fourth stage you must defeat a humongous Starbrain, who is even tougher than the standard Starbrain. Piloting over P-marks will increase the firepower you'll need for the final battle with the evil computer.

Getting three P-marks awards you five-way firepower and a shield!

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE™

Trademark of Bandaï America Inc.

from BANDAI

More than a hundred years have passed since Robert Louis Stevenson first published the immortal classic, "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Now, all of the mood of Victorian England and the frustration of poor Dr. Jekyll have been wonderfully rendered in video game format and for the first time, like Dr. Jekyll, who takes an untested potion and randomly becomes the savage Mr. Hyde, you must play both the part of hero and villain.

The doctor's goal is to get to the church and marry his lovely Millicent. But barring his way are a number of obstacles, animals, and vengeful people. When the stress becomes too much he turns into Mr. Hyde, who must be prevented from progressing too far in the World of Demons. And all the while, both Jekyll and Hyde are fighting for control!

If Mr. Hyde gets further on his Demon World path than Dr. Jekyll has traveled on his own path, lightning strikes him!

BUMP 'N JUMP™

TM of Vic Tokai Inc.

from VIC TOKAI

You're out for a nice drive with your girlfriend in your versatile little car that you've nicknamed "Popper." Suddenly, the Jackals, the notorious gang of thugs noted for their misuse of off-road vehicles, manages to kidnap your sweetheart. You must chase down the gang and rescue your girlfriend. You will have to travel 16 courses in order to save her. The gang will try to stop you, however, by bumping you into walls or dropping things in your path. But you are driving "Popper" who can do a little bumping and crashing of its own. "Popper" can also jump hazards and come smashing down on Jackal vehicles. At last, this grade favorite comes home to the NES.

Maneuver Jackal cars into walls. Drive "Popper" over Power Barrels to fuel up.

RAMPAGE™

© 1988 DATA EAST USA, Inc. © 1986 HALEY MIDWAY MFG. CO.

from DATA EAST

Just like at the arcade, you'll have a monstrous good time with Rampage.

Select either George, the colossal ape, or Lizzie, the giant lizard, and go on a spree of destruction that would turn Godzilla even greener with envy. You and a fellow monstrosity may wish to commit wanton destruction at the same time. You may even join a rampage already in progress. Your goal is to wipe out the entire United States and a large map lets you keep track of your progress. An area on the map will become black when you have demolished all the buildings in the cities within that area. Find some goodies (or a protesting resident) to eat, though you must avoid poisons as you destroy whole metropolises. However, the concerned citizens that live there are not giving up without a fight. You will be hit with a barrage of bombs, grenades, guns, and paratroopers. You'll also be thwarted by helicopters, tanks, and police cars, not to mention the flashes from a determined photographer's camera or lighting from a nearby cloud. Just be glad you don't have a fear of heights.

Jump off of a collapsing building or you'll be buried in the rubble.

Rampaging is hard work so eat plenty of good food like fish bowls and passersby.

from ACCLAIM

As the saying goes: "A minute to learn...a lifetime to master." Beautifully simple in its design and game play, this board game favorite has delighted tacticians for more than a century. Now it's all been faithfully transposed into video game format for the NES. The main objective is to cover the majority of the surface of the board with your markers. Strategically place your disc on the plush green felt grid so that any disc of a different color between the one you just placed and a previously placed disc of your color will be "captured." When captured, the opponent's disc(s) will turn to your color. But be prepared. One smooth maneuver by a cunning opponent (or the computer) and the tide of color may turn back the other way.

Secure the corners and sides of the grid for protection against color loss.

ROBOWARRIOR™

Trademark of Jaleco USA Inc.

from JALECO

Here's a SciFi adventure that is destined to be a hit! Long on excitement and rich with imagination, RoboWarrior unfolds the futuristic tale of ZED (Z-type Earth Defense cyborg), sent by Earth to her colonized sister planet, Altie. ZED's mission is to defeat the alien Xantho Empire that has invaded Altie. The citizens have gone underground, but not before hiding many weapons and secrets on the planet. Guide ZED through Altie's eight amazing regions, where you'll encounter dozens of Xantho invaders and the formidable Xantho Lords who guard each region.

Shoot a missile to clear a path in a heavily blocked area and quickly follow it.

Enter secret underground areas where the citizens have stocked secret items for you.

SPY vs SPY™

Licensed from First Star Software™ TM of Mad Magazine.

from KEMCO-SEIKA

From the pages of MAD magazine to your NES come those unequalled usurpers of undercover. The indestructible experts of espionage are on a timed secret mission that take them through eight huge embassies. Sneak your favorite spy around on a simultaneous play, split-screen. Hunt for classified government documents and other secret materials while you set traps, bombs, and snares for your opponent. Perfect your covert cunning against the computer or go pointy nose to pointy nose against a fellow ambitious agent. You'll love setting ambushes for your family and friends to discover later. Meanwhile this leaves you free to check under that painting for secrets and...Oh, no!! KA-BDDM!!!

In the hand-to-hand combat mode, both spies will appear on the same screen.

Use the floor plan map to help you find the exit only after you have all the items.

GYRUSS™

It's safer to take long shots and avoid close up confrontations.

A vibrant portrait of the imposing Genghis Khan, daring you to take up the challenge, is how your space mission begins. Save our solar system from the onslaught of the vicious Gyrussians. The Gyrussians recruited Khan from the past to lead their furious attack. You must guide your lone ship, equipped with a Neo-Tutonic Cannon, through 38 stages of the Milky Way, gathering weapons and defending the galaxy from pure terror.

If a 1-up appears, don't miss your chance.

Q*BERT™

© 1983 Mystar Electronics Inc.
Trademark under license from JVC Electronics Inc.

At last, this arcade megahit is coming to the NES. For a real change of pace try this "horse of a different color." In fact, changing to a different color is what this popular little adventure is all about. The Tazmaniac Kings of Chaos have trapped Q*Bert in a treacherous time warp. There are nine levels to the time warp with four crazy stages in each level. Guide the fuzzy little pug-nosed hero up and down the pyramid of building blocks, changing the color of the top of a block with each bounce. Change all the block tops to the code color at the top of the screen and Q*Bert will advance to the next stage. But keep alert! The Tazmaniac Kings have commanded their henchmen, Ugg, Wrong-Way, Slick, Sam, and Colly, to stop you, not to mention the falling Whammy Ball. Now, if only your legs will hold out...

Jump on the floating Whirly-Discs to escape from sticky situations.

Hop on the little green balls and freeze all the bad guys for a few moments.

PAK WATCH

A LOOK INTO THE FUTURE OF NES GAME PAKS

Pssst. Hey, you. Yeah, you. Shhh. Listen, have I gotta watch for you. Pak Watch!! Where we'll give you all the latest news flashes, low-down, bulletins, scoops, and scandals on what's happening on the NES video game game front. Remember, you'll hear it here first! Yeah, you're gonna like this watch.

Just Around
The Corner

NINJA GAIDEN

Yeah!! This new game from Tecmo got the highest marks of any title we've seen in a long time. It has a whole new feel, outstanding graphics, incredible challenge and a great storyline. We expect this one to hit number "1" on the Player's Poll in no time!

Ninja Gaiden features a Cinema Display system that advances the story with movie-like scenes, giving you a rest between action sequences. Sound effects, different camera angles, and background music add to the realism and enhance the story. Ryu's ninja wall-spring jump and climbing skills remind us of Metroid game play. This one will be our main feature in March, so, get ready for some real Ninja action. It's hot! Hot! Hot!

All Ninjas derive their strength from their inner well being. Increasing Ryu's Spiritual Strength will enable him to use special abilities and weapons, while increasing his stamina.

GOSSIP

Hiya. Howya doin'? We're the Gossip Gremlins. We've been hired by the Nintendo Power staff to sneak around and find out things that nobody else knows. Some of these things are still just being whispered about. But, hey, nothin' gets past us. We're Gossip Gremlins, ya know.

C.E.S.

A Gossip Gremlin's dream come true! The Consumer Electronic Show (C.E.S.) only happens twice a year—January and June. At the show, we uncover all the inside secrets and hear all the major announcements about what to expect in the months ahead. And in March, we'll tell you!

We are
Gossip
Gremlins!

It's the season for Basketball, and man have we got some tough choices for you to make! Double Dribble will have to move over and make room for four new B-ball games to join the NES starting line up. Look to Nintendo Power to bring you a full review this spring.

Basketball is the Game of the Hour and, since our last issue, four new B-ball Game Paks have been announced.

If it's Magic Johnson's, it has to be good. From Tradewest, the Double Dragon people.

Choose from eight NBA teams and win 35 games to take the championship. Hmm. From Vic Tokai...Duke Togo in high tops?

Jaleco will add Hoops to their sports lineup (Bases Loaded, Racket Attack). It's a street one-on-one or two-on-two with some jazzy characters.

This Pak from Milton Bradley features Michael Jordan and Larry Bird. It's actually three games in one: One-On-One, Slam Dunk, and 3 Point. Sweet! We haven't heard any official release dates yet on any of the B-ball Paks, but look forward to a complete comparative review in an upcoming issue.

GOSSIP

Robocop

Data East is spending a little more time on this one to add more depth to the game play. Expect more word about Robocop in our March issue.

Bayou Billy

Konami announced "Billy" a while ago, but there's still no firm release date. Three games in one, it will combine fighting action, Zipper (optional shooting, and Red Racer-like driving sequences in a "down on the Bayou" setting.

Can't wait!
can't wait!

THE GUARDIAN LEGEND

A deadly artificial satellite filled with evil mutant life forms is heading toward Earth. Only a beautiful transformable android stands between the "death star" and the obliteration of Earth. New from Braderbund.

In fight scenes there's an overhead view which allows the player to scope everything. Then: surprise! The android can transform into a powerful fighting spaceship where some slick graphics highlight a terrific aerial battle sequence. Assuming that the game is ready in time, we will have a complete feature review in the March/April issue of Nintendo Power.

In this phase, the Guardian transforms and wages battle as a sleek spacecraft.

In the action sequence, find energy and equipment that will aid your mission.

The sub-screen shows location, energy level, and equipment.

From Acclaim

KNIGHT - RIDER

We haven't received much on this Game Pak, but we know it's based on the exploits of Michael Knight and the fabulous KITT car from the television series of the same name. For those less familiar with the show, KITT is a fully automated, fully armed, computerized Trans Am with an artificial intelligence.

From Acclaim

AIR - WOLF

Another TV favorite has been announced for the NES. Airwolf, in case you didn't catch the show, is the world's most sophisticated high-tech helicopter and soars into battle against evil doers everywhere. We expect this one to land a few months down the airstrip.

This "pilot's view" screen shows the Airwolf cockpit.

GOSSIP

Bad Dudes

Rumor has it that Data East is converting their arcade hit, "Bad Dudes." We're hoping for two-player simultaneous play.

Defender of the Crown

This one was originally a computer game. Ultra will bring this medieval role playing adventure involving Robin and Sherwood Forest to your NES.

TEENAGE MUTANT NINJA TURTLES

They're young, they're genetically enhanced, they're highly trained, and...they're reptiles. The irreverent quartet is coming to the NES.

First they were a cult hit in the comics; then Saturday morning cartoons. Ultra has been hyping this Pak for a long time. Turtles are slow and this one seems to be taking its time in getting here, but it should come out of its shell very soon. We hear it's similar in framework to Metal Gear which suggests to us an overhead view showing lots of territory and equipment. No pics yet, but we managed to get a shot of the box.

GOSSIP

Nintendo's own 1989 lineup so far includes:

Cobra Triangle, Pinbot, Faxanadu, Trick Shooting, Jump Burger (Jump Burger??) Prototype Programs will be shown at CES, so we'll know more in March.

Announcing the Hands Free Controller!

Nintendo of America Inc. is happy to announce the newest addition to its versatile line of video game accessories: the Hands Free Controller (HFC). As its name implies, the new device will allow its user traditional control of a video game without the use of hands. It has been designed to serve our physically limited, special needs players who are unable to manipulate the controllers currently offered. The basic design of the controller allows the user to wear it like a vest. It uses a "sip and puff" method to operate the A and B Buttons while navigating the video characters with a chin-tined joystick. In addition to making game play accessible, it's a lot more fun than most physical therapy exercises. As a result, HFC players strengthen their neck muscles while playing their favorite video games. Nintendo's Research and Development department worked with Todd Stablefeldt and several other physically limited Power Players at Seattle's Children's Hospital in developing the HFC, and all were very enthusiastic. The result is our new official Hands Free Controller, which will be ready for release by the spring of 1989. We will sell the HFC directly to consumers through our Consumer Service number (1-800-422-2602) as a non-profit item. The $179.00 package will include the NES Control Deck, the Hands Free Controller, and one Game Pak. The controller alone will cost $120.00. The HFC works with any game that utilizes our current controllers (except for the Zapper Light Gun games), which will make a great number of NES games more accessible. Nintendo products such as this will mean a lot more people will be able to get in on the fun.

PLAYCHOICE: All the action, the fun and the choices are yours!

Imagine an arcade machine packed with 10 of the hottest new games all at once! Well, Power Players, you don't have to dream about it. Just look for Nintendo's Playchoice system in convenience stores and arcades near you.

The Playchoice system is a veritable video juke box. After popping your quarter or token into the machine, hit the reset button and select your new game. The only difference between Playchoice-10 and a juke box is that you're selecting video games instead of songs. You actually own the machine from the time your quarter slides down the slot until your time runs out.

The Playchoice system has a great deal to offer. If you put multiple quarters or tokens in at a time, you receive a bonus. For instance, each quarter or token will give you 300 time units. By putting two in at the same time you receive an additional 150 units for a total of 750 units!

The Playchoice system has up to 10 great games to select from. Check the game menu often for fresh selections. On the Playchoice system you can expect to find detailed graphics, and a helpful stop-action feature. Plus, the excitement and versatility of ever-changing game menus.

Five new games now out on Playchoice systems are: Contra, Double Dragon, Super Mario Bros. 2, Punch-Out!! and Gauntlet. And, for the really big news, begin looking for Super Mario Bros. 3 in the spring of 1989.

Be on the lookout for Playchoice—it's the only CHOICE!

All that's hot isn't just on the video screen; there are exciting new sounds coming at you through the airwaves, too.

Debbie Gibson

Atlantic recording superstar Debbie Gibson has just released her second album, entitled "Electric Youth," and all indications are that "Electric Youth" will be another smash hit for the teen singer. Debbie's first album, "Out of the Blue," sold over three million copies and produced five hit singles, one of which went to the top of the charts. Debbie has also released her first video, called Debbie Gibson "Live in Concert." This video captures the excitement and magic of Debbie as she performs not only her hit songs, but some new songs, too.

What's New In Rock & Roll?

Julian Lennon

Julian Lennon will make his return to the music scene this spring with a new album. This is Julian's third album and clearly shows that he is following in the footsteps of his talented father (late Beatle John Lennon).

Huey Lewis and the News

After ten years in the music business and millions of albums sold ("Sports" 9 million, and "Fore" 6 million), Huey Lewis and the News are once again spreading the good news with the release of the third single—"Give Me The Keys"—from their latest album, "Small World." This song is Huey at his best, and might possibly be the biggest hit released off this album.

Look for this song to rocket up the charts, and look for Huey and the band to kick off an extensive U.S. tour starting this January. Says Huey, "We love to play live. It's how we began and what keeps it fresh for us."

Celebrity Profiles

Karch Kiraly

U.S. VOLLEYBALL TEAM CAPTAIN KARCH KIRALY NEEDS A LESSON OR TWO IN NES VOLLEYBALL

Karch Kiraly is said to be the best volleyball player in the world. He's led the U.S. volleyball team to win two consecutive Gold Medals in the 1984 and 1988 Summer Olympics, won numerous national and world championships, and is a three-time beach world champ, but volleyball is not the only thing that he is known for... he's a champ when it comes to playing Nintendo video games... all that is, except "Volleyball!"

"The volleyball game is impossible to beat," Karch bemoans, "we just can't figure it out. I've only beaten the computer three games—it's embarrassing! I'm good at "Super Mario Bros." though and have gotten close to beating Tyson in "Mike Tyson's Punch-Out!!."

Karch's playing is not just confined to his home. Several times a year he takes his NES on the road...and not just around the corner. Last year, Nintendo fever was experienced in the Soviet Union when he and fellow Olympic gold medalist, Steve Timmons, brought the system to an international event. Members of the team got together to play three-on-three Nintendo "Baseball." Three people would be on each team taking turns at the bat, and one person would pitch. However, televisions in the Soviet Union are not as technologically sophisticated as those in the U.S. They played on a black and white television with the system connected by athletic tape. That's NES dedication!

Olympic Champions Practice With Team Nintendo

Can you spot the Power Players in this gold?

More recently, he brought the system to Seoul, South Korea, for the Olympics. "Everybody thinks that international travel is so exciting," explained Karch, "but most of the time it gets quite boring. The NES kept us from climbing the walls in Seoul. Everybody on the team would get together and challenge each other in "Baseball," "Mike Tyson's Punch-Out!," and "Golf."

But playing games, whether it be Nintendo video games or volleyball, is not the only priority in the 28-year-old's life. He's also busy promoting the "Karch Kiraly Volleyball Scholarship," which is offered to one high school male and one female each year. Winners are chosen based on academics, activities, and volleyball ability. According to Karch, who is a graduate of UCLA, being a good volleyball player is not enough. Kids have to realize that grades are extremely important, as well.

Karch recently added "Jeopardy," "Lee Trevino's Fighting Golf," and "Super Mario Bros. 2" to his Nintendo library. His wife, Janna, still holds true to her favorites—"Duck Hunt" and "Balloon Fight."

Introducing the breakfast of NES champions. Coming this April from Ralston Purina, the first cereal with two different packets in each box: Citrus fruit flavored Super Mario Bros. and berry fruit flavored Zelda. Now kids can find their favorite Nintendo heroes in their breakfast bowl.

MAIL BOX

I would like to compliment you on a very exciting game. Super Mario Bros. 2 is the best game I've played yet. I love it. It's got the best graphics and it's plain fun the whole time you play. I suggest that all the kids that love Nintendo should get this game. I like the way Luigi runs in the air when he jumps and I also like the story. I thought that it was very original. My favorite good guy is Mario and my favorite bad guy is Bowser.

David Belsito
Key Biscayne, FL

Thanks David. We're glad that you like it. Super Mario Bros. 2 is already a certified hit and it's great fun like you that make it as popular as it is.

What ever happened to Dragon Warrior? Will it be coming out?

Chip Stewart
Marshfield, MO

Dragon Warrior, a challenging new fantasy role-playing adventure, is tentatively scheduled for release some time this year.

There are a lot of reasons why the release of a game can be delayed, among them are the chip shortage and programming changes. In any case, we want to insure that when a game is released that it meets the high standards you've come to expect from Nintendo games.

My name is John George Haughe. I am 11 years old. I really enjoy Nintendo Power. I can probably think of nine different words to describe it. Would you like to hear them? If you said "yes," here they are. If you said "no," here they are anyway: Superb, Great, Excellent, Cool, Neat, Fun, Awesome, Educational, Thrilling. Well, there they were.

John "Jammin' Johnny" Haughe
Port Saint Lucie, FL

Thanks for the words of encouragement, John. We're trying our hardest to bring you a magazine that will be enjoyable and informative.

I just recently got my hands on Metroid—what a game! All of the realistic flips, bounces, sounds and graphics make this game really hot! One reason I know it's got to be good is because my friend's parents like it and they're really choosy when it comes to games. What I want to know is if you guys are making any new games, and will any of them be as cool as Metroid?

Neil Gercie
Albuquerque, NM

We're always coming out with great new games. Neil. Make sure to check out Pak Watch, Video Shorts and the assorted game reviews in Nintendo Power for details on all the latest hits.

CUSTOMER SERVICE TIP Zelda's Memory

Have you ever played The Legend of Zelda, reached a critical stage of the game and then Saved your progress only to find out later that the memory got zapped? Well, unfortunately that does happen with some Zelda Game Paks. The good news is that there is a simple procedure to follow which will prevent any accidental erasures. 1) When the game is over select SAVE, then push START; 2) When the SELECT SCREEN appears push the RESET button on your control deck and hold it; 3) Now, while holding the RESET button, turn off the power. Remember to use this procedure every time you want to save your game. If you do, your Zelda Game Pak will, in turn, remember all the items and hearts that you've collected.

My son, Sam, turned 4 years old on October 11th (Mario's birthday) and he has been playing his NES for a year. To my knowledge Sam's high score on Super Mario Bros. is 328,950, which he achieved only a short time after we purchased the NES. He defeated Bowser at Level 8-4, both with and without fireballs.

We purchased The Legend of Zelda, and after watching my husband and I play, Sam played the game himself. Within a couple of months he defeated Ganon in both quests. We also bought Kid Icarus and Sam managed to defeat Medusa.

The original Mario Bros. game was next in line and Sam and I played as a team. We managed to play together 112 rounds.

Finally, we acquired Kung Fu and, as expected, Sam beat Mr. X.

We will be getting Super Mario Bros. 2 and Zelda II—The Adventure of Link next. Sam is anxiously awaiting both of them.

Sam holds his own with the older kids and the adults, often beating the best of them. At first, I was concerned that we had a video junkie on our hands, but I've found that he's learned a great deal from the games. His reaction time is excellent and he's learned to differentiate directions like left and right and up and down, and he's even learning how to spell and read a little and how to keep score. He's figured out special secrets and capabilities of the games on his own even before those hints are published in your magazine.

Sam looks at Nintendo Power almost daily. He loves figuring out the maps and he makes me read it to him over and over again.

Carol Fish
Newburgh, NY

Thanks for telling us about Sam, Carol. We always enjoy hearing about how the NES appeals to a wide range of ages.

My club and I have some tips for developing Nintendo clubs. First, all club members should participate in an election or appoint a leader some way. Next, create rules of membership and of governing meetings and contests and the like. You might decide to have different leaders and officers every couple of months or so in order to bring forth new ideas and to make sure that no one gets left out or tired of leading. All club members should pay minimal bi-annual dues. Also try to generate some money from contests with a small entry fee. It's hard, but worth it when the club gets a new game in the library. Try to keep the money in some member's bank account to collect interest.

These are simple guidelines which aren't too complicated or hard to establish. And you'll find a leader is just what you need to keep order. Just follow a couple of rules and your club can have more fun without having to worry about stuff. So don't just stand there. Get your club involved and let your scores soar and the club thrive!

VIDEO SPOTLIGHT POWER PLAYERS

The spotlight's on you! We think you'll agree that these players possess video prowess!

I think I am an NES Power Player. I can win lots of games very fast. I write to Nintendo all the time to tell them tips, for all of their games. I was honored! I have a little brother, Blair, who is on his way to becoming a Power Player quite soon. I am going to get Super Mario Bros. 2 and Zelda II—The Adventure of Link. My five greatest tips are:

- 1) Have a current subscription to Nintendo Power.
- 2) Practice, practice, practice.
- 3) Make a map for everything.
- 4) Be patient, think, and never give up.
- 5) If you don't own an NES Advantage, buy one now! Every NES player should own one!

Brett Borders
West Palm Beach, FL

I belong to the Video Busters Club of East Providence, Rhode Island. I am writing to you because I believe that our club's Power Player Kenneth "Dr. Nintendo" Uhenk deserves recognition in your magazine. Kenneth's Nintendo Powers are rapidly becoming well known throughout the community and many people, including adults, call him from time to time for help in overcoming obstacles in various games.

Kenneth has solved various games in short time periods including Contra, The Legend of Zelda and Metroid, all in the same week.

A few of Dr. Nintendo's tips are: In Castlevania make sure when fighting Frankenstein and Igor you have firebombs and you'll wipe them out easily.

Always keep calm and maintain control of the situation. Your own brain is the key to winning.

Eddy Morales
East Providence, RI

My name is Alex Thayer and I believe that I am a Nintendo Power Player. These are my vital statistics:

Age: 12
Favorite Games: Galaga, Paperboy, and R.B.I. Baseball.
Hobbies: Sports and playing my NES.
Pets: A dog named Saki and five tropical fish.
Goals: To design engines for Lamborghini and Porsche, to play baseball or be a sports anchorman, to get my father to quit smoking, to meet D.J. Jazzy Jeff and/or The Fresh Prince, and to win at Super Contra.
High Scores: Arkanoid—1,159,500 and I finished it in the same game.
Duck Hunt—990,900, Round 48.

Galaga—269, 600, Round 37.
R.B.I. Baseball—9 to 0 with every team. 51 to 0 against the N.Y. Mets.
Nintendo Peripherals: The Official Nintendo Player's Guide, the NES Max, the NES Advantage, and 13 games.

Collections: Nintendo posters and games, baseball cards, comic books, dice, and anything to do with The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles.

Computers: An NES, an Apple IIC, and an Epson QX.

World Records: I think I hold the World Record for Duck Hunt and I hold the Unofficial World Record for the longest paper airplane flight outdoors over level ground. The time was 1 minute, 18 seconds and 38 hundredths of a second.

Role Models: Tim Laudner of the Minnesota Twins, Raphael of The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles and Samus Aran of Metroid.

Personal Observations: I think Samus is the coolest, most wicked character in the video world. Thor from Gauntlet, however, is just a big oaf!

Alex Thayer
Woodinville, WA

My brother Jared (age nine) is brilliant at playing the NES, and all the games, really. I won't bore you with all his high scores (and, believe me, there are quite a few). But, I just want to say that Jared has a natural ability and he enjoys games with mind puzzles like The Legend of Zelda and Solomon's Key. He enjoys a challenge and tries not to get too frustrated. Jared is a great player and a good sport. You won't find a better guy around.

Jill Turner
Fountain Valley, CA

I think I would make a very good Power Player because I have beaten 18 games! Included are big hits like Super Mario Bros., The Legend of Zelda, Ghosts and Goblins, Rygar, Karnov, Athena and Goonies II.

Some of my tips are:

In Rygar, keep defeating the first robot in Lapis until you are strong enough to defeat it with one hit.

In the underground chambers in Trojan, use your sword everywhere. There's no telling what you might find.

In The Legend of Zelda, always have some medicine when you go into high level labyrinths just in case you run into trouble.

I love to play my NES and my favorite games are Castlevania, Rush 'N Attack and The Legend of Zelda. The NES Advantage is a big help!

James McKenna
New Hope, PA

This is our best player, Daniel "Megatron" Lillie. He has won Metroid seven times, Rygar, Kid Icarus, Double Dragon, Kung Fu and Super Mario Bros. In our club he has reached the rank of Supreme Video Grid Warrior. We are proud!

Our Motto: Video Grid Warriors report to your Control Pads.

Power Player Profile

Name: Jose Carlos Quinones
Age: 14
City: Mayaguez, Puerto Rico

Favorite Games: I like the games that challenge me, like the Adventure Series and Konami games—especially Castlevania. It is very interesting and difficult.

Outstanding Video Accomplishments: I go through games very quickly. I beat Castlevania in one day, Super Mario Bros. in four days (with a score of 9,999,950), Contra in two days, Mega Man in two days and, most recently, Super Mario Bros. 2 in just one day, finding two different Warp Zones.

Hobbies: My main interest really is playing my NES. My nickname is "Mr. Nintendo" because I play so much and my friends ask me to teach them to play the games they can't master. I also keep good grades at school.

Future NES Games: I hope to get Zelda II—The Adventure of Link, Life Force and Bionic Commando.

Dear Players,
Are we ever excited! At press time, we were on our way to the giant Consumer Electronic Show which takes place in the city of Lost Wages. I mean: Las Vegas. This is a spectacular show where everybody in the electronics industry gets together to display their new hardware, accessories, software, inventions, and Game Paks. Imagine, we, along with all 34 of our licensee companies, were together under one roof. The number of new licensee companies has grown dramatically and now includes such a familiar name as Milton Bradley! To all of them we say: "Welcome aboard."

What this means to you is that more imaginations than ever are at work to bring you the greatest number of choices in the history of video games. From what we've heard, this year promises to be the most exciting year yet. And with this much info to report back on, the March/April issue will be more Powerful than ever in keeping you up-to-date on the best new games and helping you make the right game choices. So stick with us. There are monsters to be fought, people to be rescued, worlds to be saved, treasures to be discovered, and lots of great times to be shared. And in case we forgot: Happy New Year, gang!
